Porvoo Primates Communiqué 2017 Final

Nytt fra den verdensvide kirke – Porvoo

Sammendrag

Ledende biskoper i kirkene i Porvoofellesskapet møttes til «Porvoo Primates' Meeting» i København, Danmark 12.-14. oktober 2017. Primates' Meeting finner sted omtrent annethvert år og gir biskopene mulighet til å gjennomgå arbeidet i Porvoofellesskapet. I tillegg er det en god anledning til å utveksle informasjon, erfaringer og tanker fra egne kirker, og diskutere felles anliggender.

I år var biskopen av København vertskap for møtet, og Den danske folkekirken hadde satt sammen et spennende program om The Presence, Role and Mission of the Church in a Secular or Post-Secular Society. Biskop Marianne Christensen fra Danmark holdt en hovedinnledning om det sekulære samfunnet fra et teologisk perspektiv, hvor hun bl.a. pekte på at det sekulære samfunnet er en forutsetning for trosfrihet; «ikke gi sekularistene monopol på det sekulære samfunnet». Biskop Helga Haugland Byfuglien deltok med en innledning med tittelen What is the contribution of world Lutheranism in post-modernity?, hvor hun blant annet trakk frem et gjennomgangstema også i Det lutherske verdensforbund, det å være frigjort til tjeneste for verden.

Porvoo Contact Group møttes i forkant og etterkant av Primates' Meeting. På dette møtet ga Den norske kirke fra seg sekretariatsansvaret på vegne av de lutherske medlemskirkene til Svenska kyrkan etter nærmere ti år.

Porvoo Communion Primates' Meeting
Copenhagen
12-13 October 2017

The Presence, Role and Mission of the Church in a Secular or Post-Secular Society

The Primates and Presiding Bishops of the Churches of the Porvoo Communion met in Copenhagen, Denmark, at the invitation of the Bishop of Copenhagen on 12 and 13 October 2017. The Porvoo Contact Group, made up of a representative of each of the churches of the Communion met at the same time, jointly chaired by the Rt Revd Dr Peter Skov-Jakobsen, Bishop of Copenhagen and the Most Revd Dr Michael Jackson, Archbishop of Dublin. The meeting began with the Eucharist in Copenhagen Cathedral, followed by an opening dinner at which the guest of honour was Ms Mette Bock, Minister of Ecclesiastical Affairs in the Government of Denmark. On the second evening the party attended a service of sung evensong at St Albans' Church, Copenhagen, a church of the Church of England's Diocese in Europe. As they walked back through the city centre the doors of all the churches were open for Copenhagen's 'Culture Night'. Thousands of people poured through the churches during that evening.

The churches of the Porvoo Communion exist principally in Europe and, therefore, in the increasingly secular societies of the European nations. Primates and Presiding Bishops shared the stories of the relationship between the sacred and the secular in their own particular settings and found common ground both in needing to face challenges to Christianity and the voice of the Church in the modern world and also in experiencing an awakening of spiritual yearning in an age often characterised as becoming less and less religious. A secular society need not be a threat to the thriving of the Church. Rather, the secular may provide hospitable space to religion, allow the religious voice to be heard and protect the freedom of religious faith and practice. As always there was a focus on the local context and papers were delivered outlining the particular challenges facing the Church of Denmark both in finding the right expression of the relationship of Church and State and in exercising its mission and ministry in local communities.

This meeting fell just before the commemoration of the five hundredth anniversary of the beginning of the Protestant Reformation. Bishop Helga Haugland Byfuglien of the Church of Norway delivered a paper on the contribution of Lutheranism in the modern world, highlighting the Lutheran notion of 'being liberated'. 'Being liberated' is a concept that speaks of being liberated from the boundaries of the world, as well as being liberated into service to the world.

The Churches of the Porvoo Communion exist within and outside the European Union. The question of 'Brexit' and the withdrawal of the United Kingdom from the European Union was a key point of discussion. The Archbishop of Canterbury made the clear point that whilst the United Kingdom was leaving the European Union it was not leaving Europe.

The next consultation for the churches of the Porvoo Communion will be in Estonia in October 2018 with the theme 'Minorities and Majorities: A Challenge to Church and Society.'
